Level 2 p. 283

Goal: Learn affirmative and negative words and how to use them correctly.Affirmative and negative words

- Study the following sentences, paying attention to the boldfaced words.

No quiero nada. (I don't want anything.) → Literal translation: I do not want nothing.)

No estudio nunca. (I don't study ever.) → Literal translation: I do not study never.)

No hay nadie. (There isn't anyone.) → Literal translation: There is not no one.)

EXPLANATION: Unlike English, Spanish not only allows you to use double negatives, it requires them! Study the pairs of affirmative and negative words below.

algo ( something )	↔	nada ( nothing )
alguien ( someone )	↔	nadie ( nobody )
algún / alguno(a) ( some )	↔	ningún / ninguno(a) ( none, not any )
o... o ( either . . . or )	↔	ni... ni ( neither . . . nor )
siempre ( always )	↔	nunca ( never )
también ( also )	↔	tampoco ( neither, either )

- Study the sentences, paying attention to the boldfaced words.

¿Conoces a alguien en ese restaurante? (Do you know anyone at that restaurant?)

No, no conozco a nadie ahí. (No, I don't know anyone there.)

EXPLANATION: Use a before alguien or nadie when they are objects of the verb.

- Study the dialogue, paying attention to the boldfaced words.

—¿Quieres algún postre? (Do you want any dessert?)

—No, no quiero ningún postre. (No, I don't want any dessert.)

EXPLANATION: Alguno(a) / ninguno(a) become algún / ningún before a masculine singular noun.
